

I read an article the other day titled...

"Economy Squeezes the American Dream"

In it, it talked about the current economy's effect on the "American Dream."

From the very first sentence, I knew that the writer knew NOTHING about what the American dream was.

The very first sentence of the article was...

"Work hard, play by the rules and tomorrow will be better than today."

Are you kidding me?

The "work hard" part I got. It's a necessity to be able to live your dream lifestyle no matter where you live.

But, "play by the rules and tomorrow will be better than today."

Excuse me, but that is a HUGE load of crap!

Here is what happens when you play by the rules....

1. You go to college and spend a ridiculous

amount of money on a degree you in most cases will never use or need.

2. You get a job that pays you little, but forces you to work 50 to 70 hours per week to make ends meet.

3. You most likely have no job security and a boss and employer that cares little about you, or your family.

4. You get the "priviledge" of taking one vacation a year if you are lucky.

5. You work until you are at least 65 and possibly longer so that you can have just enough money to live out the rest of your days...

Sound like the "American Dream" to you?

Sounds more like a nightmare to me.

If you "play by the rules" that is a pretty likely scenario for you.

Truth is, the article may have had good intentions, but was WAY off.

Those that have been able to live the "American Dream," or to live their dream lifestyle no matter where they are from, have never played by the rules.

Yes, hard work has always been a required element to living out your dream lifestyle.

But those that have dream lifestyles almost always create their own rules.

They are what is called "self-made."

In fact, of the 15 wealthiest people in the world as of 2008, 10 of them are self made and 5 of them inherited the money.

Of the 10 that are self made billionaires, a whopping 9 are high school or college drop outs!

Am I preaching to not get educated, no.

But, if you want to live your dream lifestyle, you have to take charge of your own life.

You have to make your own rules.

And, you have to make things happen for yourself.

I used to work at the plant 12 hours a day, 7 days a week, on the graveyard shift, I was a zombie, just going through the motions.

Talk about having no life...

Today...

I work when I want to

I play when I want to

I vacation when I want to

I can afford the things that I want

I am my own boss

And....

I definitely DO NOT play by the rules.

I make my own.

If you want to play by the rules...
go ahead.

But, dont expect any sort of dream lifestyle out of it.

If you want to start taking control of your life...

If you want to enjoy life as it was meant to be enjoyed...

If you want to be free from the prison
that is the 9 to 5 world...

If you want to take control instead of being controlled...

YOU have to make it happen!

Start making it happen today.
